

DOCTORS IN VICTORIAN SECONDARY SCHOOLS

The Doctors in Secondary Schools (DiSS) program provides youth-friendly primary healthcare services to 100 Victorian government secondary schools. A General Practitioner (GP) and Practice Nurse (PN) offer student consultations in modern, fit-for-purpose consulting rooms in schools, up to one day per week during the school term. DiSS complements existing student wellbeing programs aimed at improving health literacy and focusing on preventive health.

The program aims to:

- make it easier for students to access healthcare
- find and address health problems early
- reduce pressure on working parents.

Doctors in Secondary Schools general practitioners (GPs) provide students with the same services as those provided by GPs in the community. This includes management of physical and mental health in a youth-friendly environment.
